

Seven Students Appointed To Alpha Sigma Nu

Four Juniors and three Seniors have been selected as new members in the Alpha Sigma Nu, National Honor Fraternity. The awards were made on the basis of distinguished scholarship, service and loyalty to the college.

Those chosen are: George Buchness, Raymond L. Clemmens, Bernard A. Saltysiak, and Dudley Shoemaker from the Junior class; John J. Sweeney, Jr., Albert T. Sehlstedt, and William H. Shea from the Senior Class.

Solemn initiation ceremonies will be held on Sunday afternoon, May 4, in the office of the President of the College.

Buchness is vice-president of the Chemistry Club, vice-president of the Sodality and a member of the Student Council. Clemmens is also active in science activities and is president of the Mendel Club. He is a member of the Sodality, Debating Society and the IRC.

Saltysiak has been an outstanding competitor on the basketball and golf teams for the last two years. Shoemaker is president of the Debating Society and a former class officer.

Of the three seniors, John J. Sweeney is the only member of the Student Council. He is President of the Student Body and of the Veterans' Club. Sehlstedt has been active in the Sodality and on the Evergreen staff. Shea, a science major, is one of the Evergreen editors. All three are veterans with service overseas.

Hartman, Seifert New Vet Officers

Loyola's Veteran's Club elected Richard A. Hartman as president, John Seifert as vice-president, Paul Connor as secretary and William Connolly as treasurer in elections held on Friday, April 11.

Hartman succeeds John J. Sweeney of the present senior class. Other retiring officers of the Vet's Club include Al Fitzgerald, William Wiegand and Mark Dugan.

The Veteran's Club was started in the Fall of 1945 when the veterans constituted but one fifth of the student body. At present the great majority of students are veterans.

Cooke Vies In Hearst Test

Robert J. Cooke will represent Loyola College this evening in the finals of the Annual Patrick Henry Oratorical Contest at the Pratt Library Auditorium at 8:30. Cooke will compete against the representatives of ten other Maryland colleges in this Fifth Annual Oratorical Contest sponsored by the Hearst Newspaper Syndicate throughout the United States.

Cooke represents Loyola by virtue of his win in the elimination contest conducted at Loyola on Friday, April 11. In the past five contests, Loyola College students have been victorious four times.

This will not be Cooke's first appearance in the Hearst Oratorical Contests. In 1943, he won the finals of the Maryland high school division and finished second in the zone finals in New York City.

Candidates Approved For A. A. And Student Council Offices

With Loyola's own election day less than two weeks off, April 28, eight candidates have applied for the offices of President of the Student Body and President of the Athletic Association.

General elections will be held on Monday, April 28, and the winning candidates will be announced in THE GREYHOUND of May 2. Of the eight candidates running, three will try for the Athletic Association office.

John J. Sweeney

Leon J. Greenbaum

The new student officers will replace John J. Sweeney, present President of the Student Body, and Leon J. Greenbaum, President of the Athletic Association.

The nominees were approved by the Office of the Dean and by the Student Council at Tuesday's meeting. Elections will be supervised by the executive members of the Council. Balloting will be held during class periods to insure an opportunity for voting to every student.

Council Candidates Listed

Edward C. Barrett, Prefect of the Senior Sodality and former President of the January Junior class, is running for student president. Barrett has had two years experience in the Student Council, and is active in the IRC, the History Academy, and THE GREYHOUND.

George Buchness, also a Student Council candidate, has had three years of council experience in virtue of his offices as Vice-President of the Chemistry Club, Vice-Prefect of the Sodality, and Class President in Freshman and Sophomore years. He was a member of the wrestling and lacrosse squads for two years.

James O'Neill is a member of THE GREYHOUND staff, the Senior Sodality, the Physics Club, Mathematics Club and Dramatics Society. He served for two years as a radio technician in the Navy.

Richard Rebbert is represented in the Sodality, Math, Physics and Chemistry Clubs, THE GREYHOUND and the Chess Club. He has represented the History Academy in the Student Council for the past year.

Dudley Shoemaker, Council representative as President of the Debating Society, is also a member of the Dramatic Society and is treasurer of his class. He was first

Seniors Elect Class Officers

E. O'Neil Cole was elected president of the class of January 1948 in elections held on April 10. Terrence E. Burke was chosen vice-president, Edward G. Hart was elected secretary and John H. Plunkett was named treasurer.

The class of January 1948 will be the Senior Class at Loyola when the present Senior Class graduates in May. All four of the newly elected officers originally began classes at Loyola in July 1943 but like hundreds of other Loyola students were inducted into the armed forces before the completion of their course. Cole, Hart and Plunkett served in the Army and Burke in the Navy.

Neil Cole is a first string pitcher on the Loyola baseball team this year and has served on several Greyhound baseball and basketball teams of the past. Terrence Burke is editor-in-chief of THE GREYHOUND and secretary of the Student Council. Edward Hart, also on the first string of this year's baseball team, is a GREYHOUND sports writer. John Plunkett is THE GREYHOUND's managing editor and chairman of the Sodality's social committee.

The main jobs to be accomplished by the new Senior Class will include the production of a year book and the staging of the traditional Senior Ball. A meeting of the class will be held in the near future to discuss both undertakings.

Record Exams Set For May 2 And 3

The Graduate Record Examinations will be administered at Loyola College on Friday and Saturday, May 2 and 3, 1947.

All seniors will be required to take these examinations, regardless of whether or not they plan to attend graduate school. Should a student fail to take the examination at this time, he may be required to wait several months for the examination and take it under less favorable circumstances.

The examinations will consist of subjects such as Fine Arts, Literature, Mathematics, Physics, Social Studies and Vocabulary.

Sedan Awarded At AA Smoker

The Loyola College Athletic Association entertained over five hundred students and alumni at a mammoth smoker given in the gymnasium on the night of Monday, March 31. Free beer, cold cuts, games and entertainments were provided for the overflow crowd. At the close of the smoker the Rev. Robert P. Arthur, S.J., conducted the drawing of the 1947 four-door Pontiac sedan. The winning ticket was held by Miss May M. Sullivan, of the Bronx, New York. Thomas Gisriel won the $25.00 prize offered to the student who demonstrated the greatest co-operation in the drawing.

The money which was realized on the drawing will be used to erect a fence around the athletic field, to install new seats in the east end of the gymnasium, and to purchase new lockers for the gymnasium.

A Period For Class Meetings

The January Freshman Class elections held some weeks ago brought into the foreground a problem facing all of Loyola's class activities. With the diversity in schedules consequent upon the enlarged student body it simply is not possible to have unified class meetings.

The problem resolves itself down to this: When a class wants to hold a meeting—whether it be to elect officers, plan for a dance, discuss future activities, or secure class opinion on affairs being considered by the Student Council, the class must, under the present setup, try to choose some time when the largest number of its members can be present. It is a lucky class which manages to get half of its members to any meeting.

We are presuming that it is important that individual classes be closely united. Class activities often involve the expenditure of funds; the student who is unable to attend a meeting at which other members with different schedules decide how to spend his money has very nearly a legitimate complaint.

If we admit a problematic situation, what is to be done about it? One answer seems simple and effective enough. One regular class period a week should be set aside for class meetings. If possible, it would be better that this period be simultaneous for all classes. Attendance at these meetings would be compulsory, of course. The gatherings would have to be well run: the plan is not an excuse for a free period, but for real and important class work.

Have classes a need for so frequent meetings? If they have no need now, it is because they have not been given the opportunity to meet and realize the need. Many things at present not even thought of could be done with facilitated and unified class action. The period should and could serve for a general dissemination of school news, club news, and student council activities.

The plan could not be put into effect now. But with a new schedule in September, we suggest to the new president of the student council, whoever he may be, this solution to what appears to be a most pressing problem.

Major World Problems Discussed by Loyola IRC

With all its major conferences for the scholastic year behind it, Loyola's International Relations Club has had the opportunity to witness and investigate events of greater moment than ever before. In addition to the mere dispassionate appraisal of facts, its members have been treated to conditions which very closely approximate those of the United Nations. Last December, at Vassar College, the two officers of the International Relations Club, Gus Crenson and Edward Barrett, encountered an atmosphere that crawled with blocs, schisms and smoke-filled rooms. The discussion at that meeting, which was sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, centered about the Far East.

A little later in the year, in February, Loyola represented the U. S.

Radio Broadcast By Dramatics Club

The Mask and Rapier Dramatic Society invaded the ether waves last Saturday night, April 12. Broadcasting from the Georgetown Broadcasting System, and released over WARL in Washington, D. C., the Society did an original comedy play by George Herman entitled, "Hearts And Flowers." The Hooper rating has not yet been received, but it is believed that no serious damage was done.

The next presentation of the school thespians will be two one-act plays, both comedies, to be given on Loyola Night, May 23. The season will be brought to a close with a comedy to be given before the end of the Spring Term.

S. R. at a model Security Council meeting at Catholic University. Terrence Burke, Loyola's delegate, urged the modification of the Montreux Convention so that "we" might have a greater hand in protection and policy-making in the Dardanelles.

In March, Loyola again represented Russia at a model Economic and Social Council meeting at Mt. St. Agnes College. Edward Barrett proved a surly Russian but was equally confined by expressed Soviet policy. At this same meeting, Thomas Lalley of Loyola's I. R. C. represented Lebanon. The topic concerned the treatment of displaced persons.

In between these major conferences, in which out-of-state colleges participated, the club played a dominant role in the regular monthly meetings of the Maryland Regional Conference of International Relations Clubs, on topics ranging from the proposed International Trade Organization to the merits of a world state.

Letters To The Greyhound

And More on Co-Education

To the Editor of THE GREYHOUND:

I hasten to add my feeble support to Mr. Mackey's clarion call for more coeducation in Catholic Colleges. As Mr. Mackey, I, too, am not lonely. Nor am I seeking a sure-shot way of combining education and courting, although maybe that is what we really need. However, as Mother Agatha, O. S. U. so aptly stated in the Jan. 18th edition of America, "In a population where we are outnumbered five to one, it is obvious that if no organized effort be made to foster a Catholic social life, partners for life will be chosen in increasing numbers from those outside the Catholic fold."

My experience with this problem has been somewhat along these lines. During the first six grades of parochial school, the boys and girls were allowed to attend classes together. However, in the seventh grade male was separated from female and in this condition we were graduated. This state of existence continued through high school.

I fully realize that the opponents of coeducation will maintain that parish societies should provide a common meeting ground. However, the modern school with its many time-consuming activities leaves little time for participation in these societies.

Moreover, social clubs at their best do not completely solve the problem. All boys appear attractive to the opposite sex when attired in a natty sport coat with contrasting slacks, and where is the man who requires of his social club partner anything more than the ability to dance. As a Priest recently told me, "Only by allowing Catholic boys and girls to pass together through all grades of school can we hope to foster more Catholic marriages. If the girls, when they began to notice boys as prospective husbands, could see them not in the dream atmosphere of a dance but in the hard reality of the classroom, they would stand a far better chance of choosing a better husband." Also, in a coeducational Catholic College the members of one sex can readily see those of the opposite who faithfully fulfill their religious obligations.

Here, at Loyola we already have coeducation in the night school. Could not plans be made to eventually extend this to the day school also? As was pointed out in Mr. Mackey's postscript, many of the Catholic Colleges in the Mid-West and West have adopted this plan. Let us hope that Mr. Mackey's worthy suggestion will receive careful consideration.

Mr. Fritz, an alumnus of the College, recently returned from overseas service with the Navy, teaches in the Mathematics Department. After receiving his Ph.B. here in 1943, he took up graduate work at Georgetown, but soon afterward began teaching in the ASTP.

In May, 1944, he was commissioned in the Navy and served with an A.P.A. unit stationed on Maui in the Hawaiian Islands. He took part in the Iwo and Okinawa campaigns. When he returned to the States he was stationed at Dalton, Virginia, where he did research work on rockets. He was relieved from active duty in September '46.

After the Spring term he plans to leave the college to continue his graduation work. His main interests are chess, bridge, and tennis.

Today's Pattern

This panoramic, pulsating paradise of chaotic cravat is just the rage these days. Besides that, it is pattern number 874-908. It is quite the fad among the communistic May Day Parade this year so as to include the exposition of fireworks of dubious strength at the foundations of several large bridges in New York City.

The better paid necrologists of high repute in 10 of the major cities also have endorsed this marvelous masterpiece of cobalt green blended with planetary purple. In Salt Lake City last week where the annual convention of Conscientious Craniometrists was held, this tie was voted the least likely to do the most for those who anticipate acceptance in the Chinese Order of the Double Dragon.

Noel Olinger Wins Contest

Noel Joseph Olinger, one year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Olinger is the winner of THE GREYHOUND Baby contest it was announced early this week. Close behind the winner came Richard Thomas Cashen, age six months, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Cashen, Stephen Buchness, age 7 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Buchness, Charles Barrett, Jr., age six months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barrett, Edward J. Karwacki, age 2 years, 3 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Karwacki and Mary Veronica Karwacki, age one year, two months, the only girl entered in the contest.

The judges emphasized the difficulty they had in selecting the winner. "Any of the babies could be classified as a contest winner," remarked one of the judges. "They were all such attractive children I could hardly choose between them."

The Olingers will be presented with a set of six finished portraits of their son. Fred Olinger, father of the winner, played on this year's championship basketball team. The contest was open to the children of all members of the student body. It was restricted to infants three years of age or under.

Mr. William-M. J. Driscoll, S. J., moderator of THE GREYHOUND, termed participation in the contest "very encouraging." "It shows that Loyola's dads have real pride in their children."

Poll Results

Students Favor Aid To Greece

Over 80% of the students of Loyola College favor sending aid to Greece and Turkey, 55% do not believe that labor should have a direct share in the management of industry and 85% think that Communists should be barred from government positions. These tabulations are the result of a poll conducted this month by THE GREYHOUND.

In three other questions there was a sharp difference of opinion between veteran and non-veteran students. In one of these, regarding compulsory military training, 90% of the veterans were in favor of some kind of training program while only 36% of non-veteran students believed any type of draft desirable.

74% Favor Increase

Another question, dealing with an increase in the $65 a month subsistence given to single veteran students under the G. I. Bill of Rights, met with the approval of 74% of the veterans. The non-veteran students, however, were 80% opposed to the increase with 8% undecided.

On the problem of an increase in the subsistence allowed to married veterans there was less of a difference in opinion. 83% of the veterans and 76% of non-veteran students were in favor of an increase. Answers to another part of this question showed that 12% of veteran students are married as compared with only 1% of students who are not veterans.

78% Of Veterans Vote

A question regarding the political preferences of students disclosed that 78% of the veteran students vote in National, State and Municipal elections and of these, approximately 60% are Democrats, 15% are Republicans and the remainder follow neither party line but vote on the individual merits of the candidates.

Of the non-veterans, only 12% vote. Their party affiliations are approximately the same as the veterans.

71% Favor UN Police Force

Over 70% of those who answered the poll were in favor of a world police force under the United Nations. 25% were not in favor of the proposal and 4% were undecided.

The question: What magazines dealing with current events do you read revealed that Time Magazine leads the field, being read by 61% of the students. Life comes next as the weekly reading matter of 53% of the students. Newsweek is read by 32% and the Readers Digest, although not a current events magazine, is read by 38%. Six other magazines of current events are read by 30% of the student body.

Sports Most Popular Section

The sports pages of the daily newspapers are read by 83% of the students participating in the poll. Next in popularity come the comics, being read by 58% of the students. However, among non-veteran students, the comics are the most popular section, being read by 92% of them, while only 25% of the veterans will admit being fans of L'il Abner and Blondie.

55% of those polled read the Editorial page, 42% read the feature columns, and 39% read the city page.

Front Line Catholic Action

The panel discussion and open forum held at the Alcazar in late March on the subject of The Ethical Aspects of the Planned Parenthood Movement put Catholic Action where it belongs: at the front lines in the battle for truth.

That the discussion achieved its purpose could not but be evident to all those present: every chair jammed into the auditorium was filled and standing room was at a premium. The open forum following the panel was spirited. Both Catholics and non-Catholics, who had perhaps never before heard the Church's view on this timely question put so clearly and succinctly, filled a large auditorium to overflowing on a chilly, rainy, midweek evening.

What was said at the discussion was surely important, but perhaps not as important as the lesson that can be drawn from this gathering.

On every side non-Catholic attitude towards questions like divorce and birth control are widely disseminated. The Catholic doctrine has its say in frequent enough pieces in the Catholic Press. It is certainly important to get Church doctrine to its Catholic audience, but is it not equally important that our stand, and the reasons for our stand, be explained most clearly to non-Catholics as well?

These discussions on a large scale and at a location convenient and impressive, and with well-informed speakers, are simply too few and far between. Many more—an indefinitely long series of them—could be most successfully and profitably sponsored.

Topics are legion. Divorce, marriage, birth control, foreign policy—any topic on which there is an

Student Opinion

A college publication should represent the opinions of the students of the school. The published opinion of the editorial staff is unimportant unless it also can express the views of the majority of the student body.

But proper expression of the majority opinion is next to impossible unless the students will make their opinions known.

In the near future a box for such letters, suggestions, and complaints will be put up in the cafeteria. THE GREYHOUND will appreciate any and all contributions made thereunto.

official Catholic position is most worthy of discussion. Fine speakers and informed professional men are readily available in this cultured area. Small admission charges could easily cover all expenses.

It is unfortunate to note that more discussions are not at present being planned. Will they be? The brilliant success of this first attempt cannot be ignored. This field for important, practical Catholic action is wide open, and waits only upon the individual or group who will fill the breach.

Our May Day

While Communists the world over trot out their reddest clothes for their annual May Day debacle, American Catholics will counter with prayer for the conversion of Russia.

In the first of a proposed series of May Day devotions, Baltimore Catholics will meet at the Stadium on Thursday evening, May 1, at 5 p. m.

Surely no single nation needs our prayers more than Russia. Loyola students are urged to channel their prayers toward this worthy end by attending this short devotion.

To The Editor of THE GREYHOUND:

It would do well for those who seem to think that the unmarried veteran is quite well paid, perhaps overpaid, with his $65 a month, to hesitate and investigate before making any claims in that direction. It appears to be the consensus of opinion among non-veteran students that the single veteran is being handed a life of ease and should utter not one word against his financial standing.

This is an effort to justify the situation, opposing an article in a recent issue of THE GREYHOUND. Granted that $65 is a noble sum to be handed on the last day of each month, and that the majority of students lived on well under that before the war, but—the student veteran is no longer a 17 or 18 year old recent high school graduate. He is a full-grown, mature man whose expenses and status of life are that of a mature man, despite the fact that he is attending school.

In a few words the situation is WATCHDOG POETRY COMPETITION: After much debate, the three surviving judges of the Watchdog Poetry Contest announced Cornelius Washington Honk, a special student, the winner of the all-expense trip to Catonsville. However, the judges were so overcome at the emotional content of Mr. Honk's three-word poem that the editors feel justified in refusing to reprint it here. For interested students who may wish to see the work, it is being preserved in a glass case on the roof of the Library Building.

George Herman was announced as the winner of the six paper salad forks, but as the "Newsprint" pattern was not available the "Hearts and Flowers" motif has been substituted. Unfortunately, fuming nitric acid instead of the concentrated liquid was used in writing the poem on blue litmus paper, and immediately after the contest Mr. Herman's manuscript evaporated.

In Defense Of The Single Vet

the same as having a job that pays $65 a month, except that, instead of working 8 hours a day for his money the veteran spends his time gaining knowledge. $65 per month, approximately $15 a week—that's not a very good job is it?

Before the war, the Freshman student had his clothing expenses paid for by Dad, was often times granted an allowance by Dad, and had a somewhat simpler mode of life than the present over-age student. Okay, perhaps he did have to help by putting in part-time work toward his tuition.

But, today most of the veterans must meet all expenses (clothing, everyday essentials, luxuries, etc.) out of their subsistence money, besides contributing money to the household expenses, if living with their parents, or paying board if not living at home. I know of one particular case of a Loyola student whose home is not in Baltimore, and he pays $50 per month to the people with whom he lives. That leaves him $15 each month to live on—50 cents per day!!!

If individual cases are investigated, the fact will come to light that quite a few of these 'wealthy' veterans find it necessary to take on part-time jobs in order to supplement their subsistence checks. Going to classes, studying, working afternoons or nights . . . it's a rugged schedule, try it sometime.

There is also the fact that the average veteran is at the age where he is thinking seriously of getting married and that's quite an undertaking, financial or otherwise.

No, the veteran will not get into the "habit of having more money than one really needs." He does not clear, after expenses, $65 monthly; he clears nothing. If anything, he will get into the virtuous habit of making his money stretch.

Please do not misunderstand. I am not advocating an increase in the single veteran's subsistence, I am merely defending it as it now stands.

The Loyola Library is still keeping up with the best seller list and can be seen from the following books.

Holdfast Gaines—

Odell and Willard Shepard Following closely in the footsteps of Kenneth Roberts, the Shepard brothers have produced another of those historical novels which always seem to find their way to the best-seller lists.

The setting of the novel is in the time of the War of 1812, and the names of Jackson and the other figures in that struggle have prominent places in the action. Holdfast Gaines is a giant Mohegan Indian who does heroic work to aid the Americans in this second war of independence.

Information Please Almanac—

John Kiera The popularity of this volume proves once again that if enough well known names are behind a project and that project is given enough publicity, no matter how good or bad the work may be it will be a good seller. As an Almanac this book is very good; but I doubt the wisdom of the publisher who tells the reader that he may read it for enjoyment.

On Second Thought—

James Gray James Gray has collected his book and play reviews from past years, added some modern commentaries, and put them into this book. Mr. Gray writes a better than average book review and anyone who does any reading at all will find something to interest him in this volume.

Running With The Hounds

by M. F. Mackey

Spring sports at Evergreen are baseball, tennis, golf, lacrosse and track. To date, the tennis team has been the outstanding group representing Loyola. This team should take almost every match of the season and the credit is due first of all to the players themselves, then to the coach, Vince Colimore. Among the players it is impossible to single out individuals for praise as the entire team is composed of very good netmen. All of them: Bill and Joe Thaler, Frank Scrivener, Jim Lacy, Gene Nolan, Jerry Laroque and Bill Lister have turned in fine performances for Loyola. With such talent and good coaching, the Greyhound tennis team may well compile a season record that will be an all-time high for Loyola.

That Catholic U. baseball game was a thriller, at least in the last inning. For eight innings, Loyola held a slim one run lead and the game was going slowly. But in the first half of the ninth, Catholic U. teed off on Bill Carroll's otherwise good pitching to put two men on base. At this point Coach Reitz substituted Farace on the mound and the new pitcher promptly threw the ball over the catcher's head and a run scored. Another run scored on a wild play and the score was tied. Things might have been worse except for the alert playing of Loyola's infield who put two men out in quick succession to retire the side.

The winning run, scored by Jim Carmody in the last half of the ninth by stealing home, was a good example of taking advantage of a pitcher's faulty delivery. Jim was almost across the plate before the ball left the pitcher's hand.

At this writing, the baseball team is an unknown quantity. Until the team's hitting improves there can be no predictions of a conference's championship or even a good season. Extra-base hits and some cleaner fielding will make the difference.

The track team really took a shellacking from American U. in that meet last Saturday. There is no doubt now that what the team needs is able coaching and an improved track here at Evergreen. Unless these conditions become realities soon we foresee more of the same type of defeats for the cindermen at Loyola.

George Brown ran the best race of the day in winning the two mile in record time for this track. This race wasn't even close. In the final lap, George opened up with a terrific burst of speed to draw away from his nearest opponent and win by more than seventy yards. On this track, which George is used to practicing on, the ruts and bad banking are notorious. If and when it is sufficiently improved, the track record for the mile and two mile will be even further lowered by this great runner.

Lacrosse is really the mystery sport. After constant observation of practice sessions, nothing can be said about the relative merits of the team as compared with those of Hopkins and Maryland, Loyola's prime opponents this season. Goal is going to be a busy spot on the Loyola ten with the All-Americans from the above schools aiming them at the net from all angles. The team hasn't played a game yet, so little can be said about how they'll do in games against top-flight opponents.

Father Herlihy's golf squad dropped their practice match against Cornell, but such big-time competition was not expected to be conquered so early in the season. The squad has a short schedule, compared with some of the other spring sports, and the lack of sufficient games may find the team unprepared as a unit to cope with more experienced opponents. These golfers certainly are an enviable lot, though. No sport looks more like a pleasure on the agenda of Spring sports at Evergreen.

Cole Loses Pitchers' Duel As St. Joe Edges Hounds 3-1

by Don Fay

Loyola played the perfect baseball host last Friday afternoon, bowing by 3-1 to the visiting St. Joseph's College (Philadelphia) nine in a well-played game before a good crowd at Evergreen. Neill Cole flipped a fine game for the home forces, but Jim McCabe, a stocky, stout-hearted southpaw for the visitors, did even better as he limited the Hounds to four singles during his eight and one-third innings on the mound.

Cole showed he had lost none of his stuff from last year, as he limited the Philadelphians to seven hits, but a trio of consecutive hits in the sixth inning proved his downfall.

Score Three Runs

Right-fielder Fitzpatrick beat out a hit to short, and Jim Freeman followed with a high curving ball down the right field line. Jack Amer threw in to second, and Tommy Lind, Loyola shortstop, faked a throw to third, then dived back and apparently tagged Freeman off second. Umpire Burgemeister called him safe, however, and the next batter, Lally, slapped a hard ground ball that caromed past Lind's glove for a safety, and both runners were home.

After a walk, Cole then fired wild past third on an attempted force play, and the third run scored. Jack Wintz, who took care of the catching chores very efficiently, then fired to Jim Carmody at third to pick off the runner.

Whalen Scores

The Greyhounds tallied their lone run in the fourth. Walk and a two base error put Jack Whalen and Amer on third and second with one out. Carmody was intentionally walked, loading the bases. Center fielder Al Filbert bounced a grounder to short, but the double-play try was stopped by the sliding Carmody at second, and Whalen scored. Amer then attempted to score, but was thrown out to end the inning.

Loyola put two men on in the ninth with none away due to walks from the weakening McCabe. The visitors lifted the southpaw for Jack Ramsay, who proceeded to retire the next three batters. Dick Farace, batting for Ben Spurrier, fanned, and Ed McGarry and Tommy Lind both sent long fly balls to center field.

Cole Gets Two

Cole led the losers' hitting with a pair of sharp singles to center. McGarry and Lind collected the other safeties. Freeman and McCabe had two hits each for the victorious team.

Loyola Defeats Catholic U., 3-2 In Ninth Inning

With the score knotted at two all in the final stanza, Jim Carmody, third baseman for the Greyhound nine, stole home with the run which enabled Loyola to down Catholic University 3-2 at Evergreen last Saturday. Carmody singled, took an extra base on a wild pitch, advanced to third on a strike-out, and then crossed the plate during an elaborate wind-up by pitcher Kingsbury of the visitors.

The Greyhounds took the lead in the initial stanza by pushing across the only run scored until the eighth inning, when Tommy Lind connected with a round tripper to give Loyola a 2-0 edge. C. U. tallied two markers in the final frame, but Carmody's base-running in the last of the ninth gave Loyola their margin of victory.

Pocket Billiards Rated Most Taxing Sport At Evergreen

"Never played before, huh?" . . . "Naw, always wanted to try this game" . . . "Six balls in a row! Maybe ya' used to watch Willie Hoppe?" . . . "Naw, who's he?"—Lee Polek and Bill Cahill.

Loyola does not field an intercollegiate pocket billiards team because few top players here at Evergreen have amateur standing. The "pool sharks" who haunt the two tables in the recreation room of the gym specialize in making shots "the hard way." They easily qualify as professionals under the following distinction laid down with due solemnity by the University of Michigan's famed Engineering Professor Arthur Moore, 30 year veteran of the cue and cushion. The pros, according to the professor, use a smooth, controlled stroke, with a follow through; as distinguished from the amateur who use a "ballistic" or shoving stroke.

There are no nine-cushion shot Willie Hoppes at Evergreen. The game calls for tremendous nervous energy. Amply braced with periodic smokes and cokes, the pool fiend sometimes becomes involved in contests that tax his resources to the utmost. When this reporter inquired of one of the more successful players the reason for his great interest in the sport, the answer was simply "it's a lot of fun—when you win."

George covered the distance in ten minutes, nine and five-tenths seconds to better the performance turned in by Jim Ball five years ago.

This was the only bright spot in the entire meet, as the Washington thinclads swept the rest of the events with ease. The final count put Loyola on the short end of a 104-26 score.

Loyola Drops Baseball Opener To Georgetown University, 10-4

In the opening game of the 1947 baseball season, the Greyhounds were decisively defeated by Georgetown University, 10-4, here at Evergreen. The game was a contest of errors and in this department Loyola came up with six fumbles to Georgetown's five.

Hoya pitchers Gorra and Friesen were seldom in trouble while Loyola had three hurlers, Farace, Carroll and Roche, trying to hold the Georgetown bats in check.

Big First Inning

Georgetown got off to a fast start in the first inning, pushing across two big runs. But the Hounds, suddenly taking a liking to the slants of hurler Gorra, were quick to pound back, chalking up two of their own in their half of the first. Singles by Lind and Carmody led this attack.

From that point on, it was Georgetown's game. In the third inning they slammed across three more runs to make the score 5-2, and this alone proved enough to whip the Greyhounds. Southpaw Bill Carroll took the mound in the fifth and Sid Roche came in to throw in the seventh.

Ninth Inning Rally

Loyola attempted a rally in the last inning which netted them one run. But Georgetown pitcher Friesen bore down and ended the game with a quick strikeout.

Spurrier and Lind led Loyola's hitting attack with two hits apiece. Ed McGarry at second and Jack Wintz catching were the defensive standouts for the Greyhounds.

Net Team Blanks Catholic U. For Third Consecutive Win

Loyola's brilliant tennis team took its third straight match last Saturday at Evergreen, winning all nine matches from Catholic University. Bill Thaler and Jim Lacy remained undefeated in both singles and doubles. Gene Nolan, Jerry Laroque, Frank Scrivener and Joe Thaler also turned in able performances. In fact, to date Laroque is the only member of the first team to drop a singles match, and this was in a tough match with Worthington of St. Joseph's of Philadelphia.

The Greyhound net team under the guidance of Vince Colimore may well be headed for the best season Loyola tennis fans have seen for several years. The team hasn't been pressed in any of their matches thus far and seem insured against any decisive defeats for the remainder of the season.

Will Meet Georgetown

What may prove to be the difference between a defeat and an all-winning season may be the outcome of the match with Georgetown University, scheduled for May 1 at Georgetown. The team has fourteen

Smoker Called A Success

The giant smoker held in the gymnasium recently in connection with the drawing of the new car was a great success, according to Father Arthur, Moderator of Athletics at the College. A sizeable turnout of both alumni and students of the college were present.

The huge buffet spread, planned and arranged by Mr. Frank Gisriel, father of Tommy Gisriel, a student at Loyola, was the center of attraction and drew a continuous crowd throughout the evening. Equally popular were the bars set up at either end of the gym to serve beer "on the house."

Began Early

Activities began early in the evening and attendance increased rapidly as time went by. Groups of alumni gathered in corners to talk, while numerous others wandered about the gym taking part in the various activities offered during the course of the evening.

Shortly before the drawing took place a piano player was discovered and everyone adjourned to the piano to take part in a stirring rendition of the usual tunes heard at such gatherings. This event was interrupted by the drawing at eleven thirty o'clock, which was preceded by the presentation of a watch to Coach Lefty Reitz as a token of appreciation for his fine work with the basketball team. The gathering broke up shortly after the drawing took place.

American University will be met tomorrow in Washington, D. C., and the Greyhounds are expecting to keep their win record straight with a victory over the Eagles. The doubles pairing will be the same as for the previous matches with Bill Thaler and Jim Lacy, Jerry Laroque and Frank Scrivener and Gene Nolan and Joe Thaler.

Lacrosse Team Faces Penn State Tomorrow

The Greyhound lacrosse team swings into action tomorrow when it travels to Harrisburg to meet the Penn State ten on the Lions' field. This will be the initial contest in an eight game schedule which the Green and Gray stickmen will tackle this season. The Pennsylvanians, although they produce a powerful team, will be considerably less potent than some of the outfits which Loyola meets later in the season.

The most powerful teams which engage the Hounds this year are all local outfits, since Maryland perennially produces the crack teams in this limited sport. Johns Hopkins, which had an original turnout of well over a hundred candidates at the beginning of the season, will play host to Loyola on May 17th at Homewood. The Blue Jays are making a bid for championship honors this year and will be an overwhelming favorite when these rivals come together.

Navy Powerful

Navy, national winners during the 1946 season, has been dropped from the Greyhounds' schedule for this year at least. Thus the Hounds will not have to face an aggregation which has eight of its last year's starting team returning to competition and is expected to be one of the leaders in this year's race.

The University of Maryland expects a powerful team this year also, since several All-Americans are included in the seventy-five men competing for starting berths on the Old-Liner team. The Greyhounds will travel to College Park on April 23rd to face the Maryland ten.

Duke Listed

The other major opponent which Loyola meets this season is Duke University. The Southern squad has seventeen lettermen returning this year, including a host of Marylanders with local high school experience. This contest, listed for May 10th, will be played at Durham.

Three other minor opponents round out the Green and Gray schedule, and all three will perform at Evergreen for local followers. Swarthmore College will engage Loyola on April 26th, Washington and Lee appears here on May 3rd and the University of Virginia meets the Hounds on May 24th.

Team Working Out

Returns are beginning to come in as the various schools open their seasons. Maryland had little trouble downing the Blue Devils from Durham and the Naval Academy team has been walking over their early competition in expected style. Biggest question mark so far is Hopkins, which was only able to eke out a 3-1 victory over an Alumni opponent and left much to be desired in the way of a strong attack.

On the home front Bish Baker reports that the team is fast rounding into shape. Daily workouts were held at Evergreen during the Easter holidays enabling the local squad to get in a little extra practice before facing Penn State.

Line-up Unsettled

So far Baker hasn't picked the unit which will compose the starting line-up when the Hounds face the opening whistle, but several men have caught his attention in work-outs. Most of the returnees will probably take over their former positions, although several of the rookie stickmen are giving them competition for first-string slots.

Biggest worry facing the team is the question of injuries. Bill Connolly's leg is still injured and will insure his seeing only limited action if he plays at all. Paul Hughes is suffering from a trick knee which is giving him trouble periodically and may cut down his efficiency.

"Chandler Don't Scare Me None" Ned "PT" Stevenson Avows

by Spence Davidson

"B" Squad baseball practice, announced Coach Ned Stevenson recently, will commence as soon as he finds the ball that Lefty gave the team to play with. Until this equipment shortage is remedied, the pitchers are warming up by simonizing the coach's new car every day.

According to the coach, candidates for practically all positions have already signed contracts. There is only one holdout so far—his star third baseman is asking either a higher English mark or his release as a free agent. Ned has also completed arrangements whereby Sobols, of the York Road League, will serve as a farm team for his outfit.

Stresses Defense

Defense will be stressed as part of the Stevenson strategy. "We're going to make sure that the bases are always loaded when we're in the field," said the coach. "That way there will be a play at any base."

Asked if there were any requirements for playing on his team, the coach stated that all candidates would have to contract athlete's foot before reporting for practice. "It gives them more confidence in themselves," he explained.

Uniforms Ready

The team is going to look and dress like a ball club according to their new mentor. "We've already ordered new uniforms," he reported, "complete with double-breasted sweatshirts." In accordance with this plan there will be strict training rules, and any player who violates them will do three laps around the pitcher's mound for punishment.

A tentative schedule is being drawn up for the junior nine and they are expected to open the season against the Seton High volleyball team late this month. Toughest game of all, according to Ned, will be a night contest against the Temple University Owls. "They'll be tough," he concluded, "but we don't give a hoot!"

When he's not busy working out his baseball squad, Ned can be found teaching English to various morons in the Freshman and Sophomore classes. A Greyhound reporter was sent to sit in on one of his Shakespeare classes. "I ain't sure who this Shakespeare character is," he said on his return, "but did you hear the joke about—"

Ned Stevenson, newly appointed coach of the B-Squad baseball team, has a pre-game pep talk with his team. Ned figures that a four man baseball team dressed in basketball uniforms will confuse the opponents considerably and give the Greyhounds a tremendous psychological advantage.

Survey Of Vets Taken By Md. History Group

According to the records of the Maryland Historical Society, 57% of the veterans now attending Loyola College were in the Army. An additional 33% served in the Navy, 9% were in the Marines, .5% in the Coast Guard and .5% in the Merchant Marine.

Further breakdown of the figures show that 16% of the present enrollment served as commissioned officers, the highest rank having been held by a former Navy Lieutenant Commander and two Army Majors.

25 Hold Purple Heart

The records further reveal that 25 students at Loyola received the Purple Heart for wounds received in the line of duty. An additional unspecified number of veterans were injured behind the lines or contracted such sicknesses as malaria.

Of the entire veteran enrollment now at Evergreen, 78% served in overseas theaters or saw extensive sea duty. Of this number 68% participated in actual combat and were awarded battle stars.

Four Were Prisoners

Four former soldiers were held as prisoners of war and two were reported missing in action during the course of the war.

In addition to the Purple Heart Decorations mentioned above, over 70 Loyola students have received decorations such as the Air Medal, the Navy Cross and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Records Still Incomplete

The records of the Maryland Historical Society were gathered from cards filled out by the veterans before the Easter recess. A small percentage of former service men still have not filled out a card and they are urged to do so at the Dean's Office as soon as possible.

Debaters Plan Two Contests

A unique event will take place this evening when Loyola's Bellarmine Debating Society upholds the affirmative issues of the National Topic, both at Catholic University and at Evergreen. At home J. Allan Panuska and Terrence E. Burke will play host to the White Society of Georgetown and at 8:30 Laurence Atkinson and Francis X. Gallagher will meet Catholic University in Washington.

Tentative plans have been arranged for debates with colleges located in the New York and Philadelphia areas.

Loyola, represented by Terrence E. Burke and Raymond Clemmens, gained a 2-1 victory over Bucknell on March 18. Later that same week, Dudley Shoemaker and Frank Gallagher handed Johns Hopkins University a 3-0 defeat in the first Oregon style debate of the year. The debating team of St. Francis of Loretto traveled to Evergreen for a non-decision contest with John Evelius and Samuel Hasson on March 22. Last Friday evening at St. James Parish Hall, Loyola and Boston College debated the National Topic before the men of the Parish Dramatic Society. Loyola won the debate.

"Godless Communism Is Doomed" - Toynbee

by William Heffner

The writing of history, according to a recent article of Time magazine, is reckoned by a certain group of observers, as B. T. and A. T. The "T" is for Toynbee—Professor Arnold J. Toynbee, whose theories are to history what Einstein's are to Mathematics.

Professor Toynbee's theories talk in terms of civilizations instead of nations, and of psychic instead of material factors.

"History is made in the realm of the mind," he claims. "The great civilizations, although apparently dead, still exist in the race consciousness or minds of civilizations today."

"Russia, for instance, is the third Roman Empire. The idea of the greatness of the Roman Empire has never quite died out, cropping out now and then in the form of powerful, power-bent states."

But, he adds, atheistic communism as adopted by Russia cannot survive and will only degrade the civilization which adopts it, because, he believes, "God is necessary for a civilization to survive."

As Time put it in reference to Toynbee's thesis: "He shattered the frozen patterns of historical determinism and materialism by again asserting God as an active force in history. The goal of history is the Kingdom of God . . . (not) a futile tragedy of blood."

British Empire Declining

Professor Toynbee's lecture tour comes at a particularly timely moment, at the hour which many call the disintegration of the British Empire. He is an Englishman himself, the professor of history at the University of London, and his theories revolve about the rise and fall of empires.

"Great empires build up gradually, almost without the empire itself realizing it. Disintegration and a period of strife ensues. The final stage can be recognized when one nation becomes the universal state by force."

cation, Professor Toynbee said, "I would choose liberal education over technical training if there had to be a choice. Some specific training is needed of course, but liberal training goes far beyond that."

The recent resurgence towards religion in Europe, Professor Toynbee claimed, should be approached with caution. "I wouldn't put too much trust in some of the converts we are making in Europe. I don't think it is out of basically sound spiritual motives that people are returning to religion there."

Dr. Toynbee was interviewed early this month by THE GREYHOUND when he was in Baltimore as guest lecturer at Johns Hopkins University. As a result of the article in Time and the reputation Dr. Toynbee has long held among historians, the lectures became so crowded that microphones had to be rigged in adjoining rooms to accommodate the tremendous crowds.

Publication Date Changed to June

All copy has been sent to the printers of the 1947 Evergreen, but it has been announced that the yearbook will not appear in time for the graduation ceremonies on May 25. Copies are expected to be available sometime during the Spring Term.

The last yearbook photographs were taken during the school days immediately preceding the Easter holidays. Copies of these photographs, and the ones taken earlier in the year, are now available.
